DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: The specification does not contain a brief description of all the drawings as required. Specifically, the specification does not contain a brief description of Figures 5A and 5B on page 5. Also, in the last line of page 9, reference is made to Figure 5. However, there is no such figure in the application. The application contains Figures 5A and 5B.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Art Unit: 1764

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1, 6, 7, 15-22, 24, and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Förster et al. (US 3,946,104).

The Förster reference discloses a device for mixing and distributing two fluids. The device comprises a chamber containing a first fluid and a series of tubes traversing the chamber in a vertical direction and supplied with a second fluid. The tubes contain openings that communicate with the chamber. The device is located between catalyst layers in a reactor. See column 3, line 4 through column 4, line 28 and the Figures.

The Förster reference does not disclose the claimed tube characteristics and concentration and does not disclose the state of each of the fluids. The reference also does not disclose a process that comprises the reactions of claim 25.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Förster to have the claimed tube characteristics and concentration of tubes because one would adjust the size and numbers of tubes in order to achieve the most effective mixing of the fluids.

The recitation of fluid types (i.e., liquid or gas) is considered to be a recitation of the intended use of the claimed device and does not result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art.

Art Unit: 1764

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the process of Förster by performing the claimed reactions because Förster discloses that the device can be used for exothermic reactions. Since the claimed reactions fall into this category, one of ordinary skill in the art would expect the claimed reactions to be effectively performed in the disclosed device.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 23 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The buffer drum in combination with the reactor is not disclosed or suggested by the prior art of record.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The prior art not relied upon discloses fluid mixing/distributing devices.
